KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

Investment in UITF exposes the investors to various types of risks including but not limited to:

- Interest Rate Risk : This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to changes in interest rates. The purchase and sale of a debt instrument may result in profit or loss because the value of a debt instrument changes inversely with prevailing interest rates.
- Market/Price Risk : This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to changes in market prices of securities (e.g., bonds and equities). It is the exposure to the uncertain market value of a portfolio due to price fluctuations.
- Liquidity Risk : This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to the inability to sell or convert assets into cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a loss.
- Credit Risk/Default Risk : This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to a borrower's failure to pay principal and/or interest in a timely manner on instruments such as bonds, loans, or other forms of security which the borrower issued.
- Reinvestment Risk : This is the risk associated with the possibility of having lower returns or earnings when maturing funds or the interest earnings of funds are reinvested.
- Other Risk : Your participation in the UITFs may be further exposed to the risk of any actual or potential conflicts of interest in the handling of in-house or related party.

PSBank Money Market Fund uses a defined Risk Management policy in identifying and measuring level of risks. The Fund uses weighted modified duration in evaluating market risk for investment in fixed income securities. Modified Duration measures the approximate sensitivity of the value of the security to changes in interest rates. Interest rates have an adverse relationship with fixed income security prices so that an increase in interest rates generally leads to decrease in fixed income prices and vice versa. The higher the duration of an instrument, the higher its risk (considering all other factors are equal).

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Month-on-month, yields on government securities increased by 36 bps on the average with the 91-day T-bills closing at 6.11% up by 36bps for the same period following higher US treasury yields as market players remained defensive ahead of the quarter end. Meanwhile, the government plans to borrow P180 billion worth of T-bills and T-bonds in June, Php5Bn lower than the previous month's GS auction. The Fund's 30-day and year-to-date absolute performance was at 0.379% and 2.095% vs. benchmark of 0.395% and 2.065% respectively, while duration stood at 0.04-year as maturities were re-invested in short term fixed income instruments. Headline inflation in June declined to 5.4% from 6.1% in May (slightly lower than consensus forecast of 5.5%). This is still higher than the BSP's target range for inflation of 2.0-4.0%. This brings the average headline inflation from Jan-June 2023 to 7.2%. Core inflation also declined to 7.4% from 7.7% in May. The lower headline inflation was primarily due to lower prices of certain food products, lower fuel prices during the month, and high base effects from 2022.

Last June, the Federal Reserve paused its monetary tightening to assess the effects of its previous rate hikes on the economy. However, Fed Chair Powell hinted that at least two more rate hikes are likely before the end of the year to bring down stubborn inflation. Meanwhile, the Monetary Board also paused its rate hikes during the MB meeting last June after inflation declined for the fourth straight month. However, additional rate hikes are still possible later in the year as core inflation remains high and potential food supply disruptions due to a moderate to strong El Niño as well as minimum wage increases pose upside risks to the inflation outlook. Furthermore, any excessive Peso depreciation due to a hawkish Fed could compel the BSP to match the Fed's rate hikes. These factors could lead to increased volatility and looking ahead, any potential rate hike may cause domestic interest rates to rise which, in turn, may lead to lower mark-to-market values in the short-term. As such, the Fund will remain to be invested in short term fixed income instruments to take advantage of higher yields which could provide better accrual for the Fund.
